To Whom It May Concern,

Regarding the new USPTO offices, I want to put my vote in for Austin, TX. Austin enjoys a relatively low cost of living and high quality of life. It also enjoys proximity to the offices of major high-tech and engineering firms and exceptional engineering programs throughout the state. It sits in the center of Texas within a couple of hours of Houston, Dallas and San Antonio - where there is a large number of patent attorneys and corporations. And for the country it is also geographically central, with flights to each coast at about 3 hours. It is of course also the seat of government for Texas and home to the State Board of Professional Engineers among other related agencies.

Thank you for your consideration,

Ali Bagheri
